

What is R&D tax relief?

In the UK companies are able to claim tax relief for their R&D activities. This government scheme is designed to boost innovation by supporting businesses who seek to improve or overcome challenges or uncertainties in their products and processes. The scheme is administered by HMRC.

What does it mean for you?

To start with you need to be a UK limited company and liable for paying corporation tax. You also need to be able to demonstrate your R&D activity, but the definition of R&D is broader than you might think.

Ask yourself:

- Do you design and make new products?
- Do you seek to improve processes, services, materials or devices?
- Do you make prototypes or perform testing?
- Do you develop software or IT solutions?
- Have you invested in failed projects or developed products that are never launched?
- Do you employ any staff with a technical or scientific background?

95% of the companies we meet will qualify for the scheme. So, you have nothing to lose by contacting us. But a lot to gain.

How can we help?

It takes an experienced eye to identify the full potential of your claim. We will give you an expert who knows about your industry and speaks your language. They walk the floors and get to know your business so that they can identify what you do to develop and innovate your products or services.

It is then a question of preparing the claim. We know what HMRC is looking for, so we can ensure your claim is maximised and robust – which gives you the best chance of having your claim approved.

We manage your claim from start to finish – scoping, registering the claim, handling queries from HMRC, and handling the accounting treatment.

We work with you to make the claims process as seamless as possible – simply put, we will do the work and you will get the benefit.

Why choose GovGrant?

We match you with an industry, commercial or technical expert that best suits your business. Irrespective of size and complexity, we will find the right technical expert who can add the most value to your claim.

GovGrant have a 100% success record – when we have made a claim on behalf of clients they have always been successful.

We work alongside your accountant to complement their skills so there is no conflict. Your relationship with your accountant won't be adversely affected.

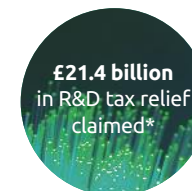

Even if you have made a claim in the past there is a good chance that we can improve on it. On average, we have increased existing claims by 200%, because we know how to find the full potential of your claim.

Many companies that qualify for R&D tax credits may also have patents or have intellectual property that is patentable. GovGrant will be able to identify if this is the case for you and advise on further benefits that might be available to you.
